When he once gets his nose in,
Head and shoulders he goes in,
His dart he soon throws in,
Slap bang to your heart.
And there still increasing,
With torment unceasing,
He pinches and vexes,
And smiles at the smart.

To Thomas Jeffreson Randolph.

My dear Jefferson

your situation at such a distance from us, and alone, cannot but give us all great anxiety for you; As much has been secured for you by your particular position, and the Acquaintance to which you have been recommended - as could be done, towards Shielding you from the dangers which surround you; But thrown on a wide world, among entire Strangers without a friend or guardian to advise you - So young too, and so little experiance of mankind. your dangers are great, and still your safety must rest on yourself - A determination never to do what is wrong; Prudene, and good humor, will go far towards securing to you the estimation of the world; When I recollect that at fourteen years of age the whole care and direction of myself was thrown on my self entirely, without a relation or friend qualified to advise or guide me; and recollect the various sorts of bad company with which I associated from time to time - I am astonished that I did not turn off with some of them, and become as worthless to Society as they are; I had the good fortune to become acquainted very early, with some Characters of very high Standing and to feel the incessant wish that I could ever become what they were under temptations and difficulties, I would ask my self what would Dr. Small, Mr. Wythe, Peyton Randolph do in this situation, What Course in it will insure me their approbation, I am certain this mode ~~will~~ of decideing my Conduct, tended more to its correction than any reasoning powers I Possed. Knowing the even and dignified line they pursued, I could never doubt for a moment which of two courses would be in Character for them — Whereas, seeking the same object through a process of moral reasoning and with the jaundiced eye of youth, I should often have erred, From the circumstance of my position I was often throwen into the society of racers Card players foxhunters, scientific and professional men and dignified men and many a time have I asked myself in the enthusiastic moment of the death of the fox the Victory of a favorite horse, the issue of a Question eloquently argued at the bar, or in the great council of the nation — well which of these kinds of reputation should I prefer — That of horse Jockey, a foxhunter, an orator, or an honest advocate of my Country's right, Be assured my dear Jefferson that these little returns to our selves, this self catechising habit, is not trifling, nor useless but leads to the prudent selection and steady pursuit of what is right

I have mentioned good humor as one of the preservatives of our peace and tranquility, it is among the most effectual, and its effects is so well imitated and aided artificially by politeness that this also becomes an acquision of first rate vallue, In truth, politeness is artificial good humor, it covers the natural want of it and ends by rendering habitual a substitute nearly equivalent to the real virtue, It is the practice of sacrificing to those we meet in society all the little conveniences and prefferences which will gratify them and deprive us of nothing worth a moments — consideration, it is the giving a pleasure and — flattering turn to our expressions, which will conciliate others and make them plead with us as well as themselves, how cheap a price for the goodwill of another — When this is in return for a rude thing said by another, it brings him to his senses — it mortifies him and corrects him in the most salutary way and places him at the feet of your good nature in the eyes of the company —

But in stating prudential rules for our Government in society I must not omit the important one of never entering into dispute or Argument with another, I never yet saw an instance of one of two disputants convinceing the other by argument
I have seen many of them get warm become rude and shooting one another, Conviction is the effect of our own dispassionate reasoning, either in solitude or weighing within ourselves — dispassionately, what we hear from others standing uncommitted in argument, ourselves, it was one of the rules which above all others made Doctor Franklin the most aimable of men in society — Never to contradict any body — if he was to announce an opinion he did it rather by asking questions, as if for informations — or by suggesting doubts — When I hear another express an opinion which is not mine, I say to myself he has a right to his opinion as I to mine why should I question it, His error does me no injury and shall I become a Don Quixotte to bring all my forces of argument to one opinion,
If he wants information he will ask it, and then I will give it in measured terms but if he still believe his own story, and shows a desire to dispute the fact with me, I hear him and saw nothing, it is his affair not mine if he prefers error —

Avoid taverns, drinkers, smokers, idlers, and dissipated persons generally, for it is such with whom Broils and contentions arise, and you will find your path more easy and tranquil. It is time for me to close with my affectionate adieu

Nantucket June 11, 1834

Come, Goody, Stop your hum-drum wheel
Sweep up your, orts, and git Your hat;
Old Joys revivd once more I feel
Tis Fair Day — ay, and more than that

Have you forgot, Kate prithee say
How many Seasons here we've tarryd
Tis forty years this very day
Since you and I, old girl, were married

Look out — the Sun Shines warm and bright
The Stiles are low, the parths all dry
I know you out your corns last night
Come, be as free from care as I.

For I'm resolvd once more to See
That place where we so often met,
Tho' few have had more cares than we We've none just now to make us fret

Kate scorn to damp the generous flame
That warmd her aged partners breast
Yet, ere determination came
She thus Some trifling doubts expressd

Night will come on, when Seated snug
And you've perhaps Begun some tale
Can you then leave your dear Stone mug
Leave all the folks, and all the ale

Ay Kate I wool — because I know
Tho' time has been we both could run
Such Days are gone and over now
I only mean to Seen the Sun

The traight Slipt of the Wall and Baid
And laid aside Lock and Twitches
And to the Hutch She reachid her hand
And gave him out His Sunday breaches
His mattock he behing the door
And hedging gloves again replacèd
And look.d across the yellow Moor
And urg.d his tottiring Spouse to haste

The day was up, the air Serene
The firmament without a cloud
The bee hummid over the level green
Where lots of trembling cowslips bow.d

And Richard thus heart with elate
As past things rush.d across his mind
Over his shoulder talk.d to Kate
Who snug tuck.d up walk.d Slow behind

When one a giggling mawther you
And I a red fac.d chubby boy
Sly tricks you play.d me not a few
For mischief was your greatest joy

Once passing by this very tree
A Gotch of milk S.d been to fill
You shoulder.d me then laugh.d to see Me and my Gotch Spin down the hill

Tis true She said but here behold
And Marvel at the course of Time
Tho you and I are both grown old
This tree is only in its prime

Well, Goody dont Standing preaching now
Folks dont preach Sermons at a Fair
We've rear.d ten boys and girls know
And I.ll be bound they.ll all be there

Now friendly nods and Smiles had they
From many a kind fair going face
And many a pinch Kate gave away
While Richard kept his usual pace

Richard and Kate

At length arrived amidst the throng,
Grand children bawling hemm'd the round
And dragg'd them by the skirts along
Where gingerbread bestrew'd the ground

And soon the aged couple Spy'd
They lusty Sons and daughters dear
When Richard thus exulting cry'ed
Didn't I tell you they'd be here

The cordial greetings of the Sout
Were visible in every face
Affection void of all controul
Govern'd with a resistless grace

'Twas good to see the honest Strife
Which should contribute most to please
And hear the long-recounted life
Of infant trick and happy days

But now as at some nobler places
Among the leaders 'twas decreed
Time to begin the Dicky Races
More fam'd for laughter than for speed

Richard look'd on with wond'rous glee
And prais'd the lad who chanc'd to win
Kate was it I such a one as he?
'Tis like him, ay, as pin to pin

Full fifty years are pass'd away
Since I rode this same ground about Lord! I was lively as the day
I won the high-lows out and out!

I'm surely growing young again
I feel myself so hedge and plump
From head to foot I've not a pain
Nay. hang me if I couldn't jump

Thus spoke the ass in Richard's pate
A very little made him Mellow
But still he loved his faithful Kate
Who whisper'd thus: My good old fellow

Remember what you promis'd me
And see. the sun is gitting low
The children you an hour you see
To talk a bit before we go

Like youthful lover most complying
He turn'd and chuck her by the chin
Then all across the green grass hieing
Right merry faces all akin

Their fairwell quiet beneath a tree
That droop'd its branchess from above
Awaked the pure felicity
That waits upon parental love

Kate view'd her blooming daughters round
And sons who shook her Wither'd hand
Her features spoke what joy she found
But utterance had made a Stand

The children toppled on the green
And bowl'd their fairings down the hill
Richard with pride beheld the scene
Nor could he for his life sit Stil

A father's rencheck'd feelings gave
A tenderness to all he said
My boys how proud I am to have My name thus round the Country spread

Through all my days I've labour'd hard
And could of pains and crosses tell
But this is Labour's great reward
To meet ye thus and see ye well

My good old partner when at home
Sometimes with wishes mingles tears
Goody says I let what wou come
We've nothing for them but our prayers

May you be all as old as I
And see your sons to manhood grow
And many a time before you die
Be just as pleas'd as I am now

Then raising still mug and rise
And old man's weakness don't despise
I love you well my girls and boys
God Bless you all; so said his eyes

For as he spoke, a big round drop Fell bounding on his ample sleeve
A witness which he could not stop
A witness which all hearts believe

Thou Filial Piety! wert there
And round the ring benignly bright
Dwelt in the luscious half-shed tear
And in the parting word Good Night
With thankful hearts and strengthen'd love
The poor old Pair supremely blest
Saw the sun sink behind the grove
And gain'd once more their lowly rest

Spring

O Come blest Spirit whatsoe'er thou art
Thou rushing warmth that hoverst my heart
Sweet innate hail! thou Source of sterling Joy
That poverty itself, cannot destroy
Be thou my muse and faithful still to me
Retrace the path of wild obscurity
No deeds of arms my humble lines rehearse
No Alpine wonders thunder through my verse
The roaring cataract, the Snow topt hill Inspiring awe till Earth itself stands still Nature's Sublimer Scenes ne'er charm'd mine eyes
Nor science led me through the boundless Skies
From meaner objects far my raptures flow
O point these raptures! bid my bosom glow
And lead my soul to ecstacies of praise
For all the blessings of my infant days
Bear me through regions where gay fancy dwells
But moulded to truth's fair form what memory tells

Spring

Live, trifling incidents, and grace my Song
That to the humblest menial belongs
To him whose drudgery unheeded goes
His joys and cares or goes
Through joys unreckon'd as his cares of woe
And youthful minds have feelings of their own
Through joys and cares in every path are sown
Quick Springing Sorrows, transient as the dew Delights from trifles, trifles ever new Twas thus with Giles; meek fatherless and poor
Laborer his portion but he felt no more
No strikes no tyranny his steps pursu'd
His life was constant, cheerful servitude
Strange to the world, he wore a bashful look
The fields his study, nature was his book
And, as his revolving Seasons Chang'd the Scene
From heat to cold- tempestuous to Serene
Though every change still varied his employ
Yet each new duty brought its share of joy

Where noble Grafton Spreads his rich domains
Round Euston's water'd Vale, and Sloping plains
Where woods and groves in Solemn grandeur rise
Where the kite brooding unmolested flies
The woodcock and the painted pheasant race
And Skulking foxes, destin'd for the chase
There Giles untaught and unrepining Stray'd
Tho every copse and grove, and winding glade
There his first thoughts to natures Charms inclin'd
That Stamps devotion to natures enquiring mind
A little farm his generous master till'd
Who with peculiar grace his Station fill'd
By deeds of hospitality endear'd
Serv'd from affection from worth rever'd

Spring

A happy offspring, for his plenteous board
His fields were fruitful, and his barns well Stor'd
And fourscore ewes he fed, a sturdy team
And lowing kine that graz'd beside the stream
Unceasing in industry a Job for Giles to do
Fled now the sullen murmurs of the north
The splended rayment of the Spring peeps
Her universal green and the clear sky
Delight still more and more the gazing
Wide over the fields in rising moisture strong Shoots up the simple flower or creeps along
The mellowed Soil and imbiding haes
Or sweets found frequent Showers and evening dews
That summon from its shed the slumbering ploghs
While health impregnates every breeze that blows
No wheels support the pointed diving Share
No groaning ox is doom'd to labour there
No helpmates teach the docile Steed his round
Alike unknown the plow-boy and the goad
But, unassisted through each toilsome day
With smiling brow the plowman cleaves his way Draws his fresh parallels, and widening Still Threads slow the heavy dale, or climbes the hill
Strong on the wing his busy followers ply
Where writhing earth worms meet the unwelcome day
Till all is changed and hill and levell down
Assume a livery of Sober brown
Again disturbed when Giles with wearying Strides
From ridge to ridge the ponderous harrow guides
His heels deep sinking every Step he goes
Till dirt usurp the empire of his Shoes
Welcome green headland! firm beneath his feet
Welcome the friendly banks refreshing Seat
There, warm with toil his panting horses brows
Their Sheltering Canopy of pendent boughs

Spring

Till rest delicious chase each transient pain
And new born vigour swell in every vein
Hour after hour and day to day succeeds
Till every clod and deep drawn furrow spreads
To crumbling mould a level surface clear
And strewed with corn to crown the rising year
And over the whole Giles once transverse again
In earths moist bosom buries up the grain
The works is done; no more to man is givin
The grateful Farmer trusts the rest to Heaven
Yet oft with anxious heart he looks around
And marks the first green blade that breaks the ground
In fancy sees his trembling oats uprun
His tufted barly yellow with the sun
Sees clouds propitious shed they timely store
And all his harvest gathered round his door
But still unsafe the big swoln grain below
A favrete morsel with the Rook and Crow
From field to field the flock increasing goes
To level crops most formidable foes
Their danger well the wary plunderers know
And place a watch on some conspicuous bough
Yet oft the skulking gunner by surprise
Will scatter death amongst them as the rise
These hung in triumph round the spacious field
At best will but a short-lived terror yield
Nor guards of property: (not penal law)
Familiarized to these, they boldly rove
But harmless riflemen of rags and straw
Nor heed such centinels that boldly rove
Let then your birds lie prostrate on the earth
In dying posture and with wings stretched forth
Shift them at eve or morn from place to place

Spring

And death shall terrify the pilfering race
In the mid air, while circling round and round
They call there lifeless comrades from the ground
With quick'ning wing and notes of loud alarm
Warn the Whole flock to shun the impending harm

This task had Giles, in fields remote from home
Oft has he wished the rosy morn to come
Yet never famed was he nor foremost found
To break the seal of sleep, his sleep was sound
But when a day-break summoned from his bed
Light as the lark that caroled over his head
His sandy way deep-worn by hasty shoes
Over ~~sandy~~ arched with oaks that formed fantastic bowers
Waving aloft their towering branches proud
In borrowed tinges from the eastern cloud
(Whence inspiration, pure as ever flowed)
And genuine transport in his bosom glowed
His own shrill matin joined the various notes
Of natures music, from a thousand throats
The blackbird strove with emulation sweet
And echo answered from her close retreat
The sporting white throat on some twiges end borne Poured hymns to freedom and the rising morn
Stopt in her song, perchance, the starling thrush
Shook a white shower from the black-thorn bush
Where dew-drops thick as early blossoms hung
And trembled as the minstrel by his sweet lays Across his path, in either grove to hide
The timid rabbit scouted by his side
Or bold cock-pheasant started from the road
Whose gorgeous and purple tints alternate glowed
But groves no farther fenced the devious way,
A wide extended heath before him lay
Where on the grass the stagnate shore had run
And shone a mirror to the rising sun

Spring

Thus doubly seen lighting a distant wood
Giving new life to each expanding bud
Effacing quick the dewy fool marks found
Where prowling Reynard trod his nightly round
To Shun whose thefts to suspend evening care
His feathered victims to suspend in air
High on the bough that nodded o'ere his head
And thus each morn to strew the field with dead

His simple errand done he homeward hies
Another instantly his place supplies
The clattering dairy maid immersed in steam
Singing and scrubbing midst her milk and cream
Bawls out "Go fetch the cows" he hears no more
For pigs, and ducks, and turkies throng the door
And sitting hens, for constant war prepared
A concert strange to that which late he heard
Straight to the meadow then he whistling goes
With well-known halloo calls his lazy Cows
Down the rich pasture heedlessly they graze
Or hear the summon with and an idle gaze
For well they know the cow-yard yields no more
Its tempting fragrance nor its wintery Store
Reluctance marks their steps sedate and slow
The right of conquest all the law they know
Subordinate they one by one succeed;
And one among them always takes the lead
Is ever foremost wheresoeer they stray
Allowed precedence undisputed sway
With jealous pride her Station is maintained
For many a broil that post of honor gained
At home the yard affords a grateful Scene
For Spring makes even a miry Cowyard clean

Thence from its chalky bed behold conveyed
The rich manure that drenching winter made
Which piled near home grows green with many a weed
A promised notriment for Autumns seed
Forth comes the Maid, and like the morning smiles
The Mistress too- and followed close by Giles
A friendly tripod forms their humble seat
With pails bright scoured and delecately sweet
Where shadowing elms obstruct the morning ray
Begins their work begins the simple lay
The full charged udder yields its willing streams
While Mary sings some lovers amorous dreams
And crouching Giles beneath a neighbouring tree
Tugs over his pail, and chants with equal glee
Whose hat with tattered brim of nap so bare
From the cows side purloins a coat of hair
A mottle ensign of his harmless trade
An unambitious peaceable cockade
As unamitious too that Cheerful aid
The Mistress yields beside her rosy Maid
With joy she viewe her plenteous reeking store
And bears a brimmer to the dairy door
Her cows dismissed, the luscious mead to roam
Till eve again recall them loaded home
And now the Dairy claims her choicest care
And half her household find employment there
Slow rolls the churn its load of cloggling cream
At once foregoes its quality and name
From knotty particles first floting cream
Congealing butters dashed from side to side
Streams of new milk thro flowring coolers stray
And snow white curd abounds, and wholesome Whey
Due north the unglazed windows cold and clear
For warming Sunbeams are unwelcome here

Spring

Brisk goes the work beneath each busy hand
And Giles must trudge whoever give command
A Gibeonite that serves them all by turns
He drains the pump from him the faggot burns
From him the noisy hogs demand theys food
While at his heels run many a chirping brood
Or down his parth in expectation Stand
With equal claims upon his strewing hand
Thus waster the morn till each with pleasure sees
The bustle over, and pressed the new made chaese

Unrivalled Stands thy County Cheese O Giles
Whose very name alone engenders Smiles
Whose fame abroard by every tongue is spoke
The will-known butt of many a flinty Joke
That pass like current coin the nation through
And, ah, experience proves the satire true
Provisions grave: thou Metropolis where Art
Dependant, huge Metroplolis mart
Her pooring thousands Stows in breathles rooms
Midst poisenous smokes and steams and rattling looms
Where grandeur revels in unbounded Stores
Restraint, a blighted Stranger at their doors
Thou, like a whirlpool, drainest the countries raund
Till London market London price resound
Through every town, round every passing load
And dairy produce throngs the eastern road
Delicious veal, and butter every hour
From Essex lowlands, and the banks of Stour
And from far. Where numerous herds repose
From Orwells brink, from Wereny, or Ouse

Spring

Hence Suffolk dairy wives run mad for cream
And leave their milk with nothing but its name
Its name derision and reproach pursue
And Strangers tell of three times skimmed sky blue
To cheas converted what can be its boast
What but the common virtues of a post
If drought overtake it faster than the knife
Most fair it bids for stubborn length of life
And like the oaken shelf whereon length fat is laid
Mocks the weak efforts of the bending blade
Or in the hog-trough rests in perfect spite
Too big to swallow, and too hard to bite
Inglorious victory, Ye Cheshire meads
Or Severnes flowery dales where plenty treads
Was your rich milk to Suffolk where plenty like these Farewell your pride, farewell renowned Cheese—
The skimmer dread, whose ravages alone
Thus turn the meads sweet nectar into Stone

Neglected now the early daisy lies
Nor thou pale primrose, blooms the only prize
Advancing Spring profusely Spreads abroad
Flowers of all hues with sweetest fragrance stord Where'er she treads, Love gladdens every plain Delight on tiptoe bears her lucid train
Sweet Hope with conscious brow before her flies
Anticipating wealth from Summers Skies
All Nature feels her renovating Sway
The Sheep-fed pasture, and the meadow gay
And trees, and Shrubs, no longer budding seen
Display the new-grown branch of lighter green
On airy downs the Shepherd idling lies
And Sees to marrow in the Marbled Skies
Here then my Soul thy darling theme pursue
For every day was Thes a Shepherd too

Spring

Small was his charge; no wilds had they to roam
But bright enclosures circling round there home
Nor yellow-blossomed furze, nor stubborn thorn
The heath's rough produce, had their fleeces torn
But ever roving ever seeking thee
Enchanting Spirit-dear Variety
O happy tenants, prisoners of a day
Released to ease, to pleasure and to play
Indulged through every field thems range
And taste them all in one continual change
For though luxuriant their grassy food
Sheep long confined but loathe the present good Bleating around the homeward gate they meet
Loosed from the winding lane, a joyful throng
See o'er yon pasture how they pour along
High fences, proud to charm the gazing eye
Where many a nestling first essay to fly
Where blows the woodbine faintly streaked with red
And rests on every bough its tender head
Round the young ash its twining branches meet
O crown the hawthorn with its odours sweet
Say, ye, that know, ye who have felt and seen
Springes morning smiles, and soul enlivening green
Say, did you gave the thrilling transport way
Did your eye brighten, when young lambs at play
Leaped o'ere your path with animated pride
Or gaze in merry clusters by your side
Ye who can smile to wisdom no disgrace
At the arch meaning of a kittens face
If spotless innocence, and infant mirth
Excites to praise-or gives reflection birth
In Shades like these, pursue your favirite joy
Midst natures revels, sports that never cloy

Spring

A few begin a short but vigorous race
And indolence abashed soon flies the place
Thus challenged forth see thither one by one
From every side assembling playmates run
A thousand wily antics mark their stay
A starting cloud, impatient of delay
Like the fond dove from fearful prison freed
Each seems to say "come, let us try our speed
Away they scour, impetuous, ardent strong
The green turf trembleing as they bound along
Adown the slope, then up the hillock climb
Where every molehill is a bed of thyme
There panting stop yet scarcely can refrain
A bird, a leaf, will set them off again;
Or if a gale with strength unusual blow
Scattering the wild-briar roses into snow
Their little limbs increasing efforts try,
Like the torn flower the fair assemblage fly
Ah, fallen rose! sad emblem of their doom
Frail as thyself they perish while they bloom
Though unoffending they innocence plead
Though frantic ewes may mourn the savage deed
Their Shepherd comes a messenger of blood
And drives them bleating from their spoils and food
Care loads his brow, and pity wrings his heart.
For lo the murdering Butcher with cart
Demands the firstlings of his flock to die
And makes a sport of life and liberty
His gay companions Giles behold no more
Closed are their eyes their fleece drenched in gore
Nor can compassion with her softer notes
Withhold the knife that plunges through their throats
Down, indignation hence Ideas foul
Away the shocking image from my soul
Away the Let kindly visitants attend my way
Beneath approaching Summeres fervid ray
For thankless glooms obtrude nor cares annoy
Whilst the sweet is Universal joy

Summer

The Farmeres life displays in every part
A moral lesson to the sensual heart
Though in the lap of plenty, thoughtful still He looks beyond the present good or ill
Nor estimates alone one blessings worth
From changeful seasons, or capricious earth
But views the future with the present hours
And looks for failacres as he looks for showers
For casual as for certain want prepares
And round his yards the reeking hay-stack rears
Or clover, blossomd lovely to the sight
His teams rich store through many a wintry night
What tho. abundance round his dwelling spreads
Though ever moist his self improving meads
Supply his dairy with a copious flood
And seem to promise uneahausted food
That promise fails, when buried deep in snow
And vegetative juices cease to flow
For this, the seed minutely small he sows
Whence, sound and sweet the hardy turnip grows
But how unlike to Aprils closing days
High climbs the sun, and darts his powerful rays
Whitens the fresh-drawn mould and pierces through The cumbrous clods that tumble round the plough
O'er heavens bright azure hence with joyful eyes
The farmer sees dark clouds assembling rise
Borne o'er his fields a heavy torrent falls
And strikes the earth in hasty driving squalls
"Right welcom down, ye precious drops" he cries
But soon, too soon, the partial blessing flies
"Bay bring thy harrows try how deep the rain

Has forced its way! He comes, but comes in vain
Dry dust beneath the bubbleing surface lurks
And mocks his pains the more the more he works
Still midst huge clods he plunges on forlorn
That laugh his harrows and the shower to scorn
Even thus the living clod, the stubborn fool
Resist the stormy lectures of the school,
Till tried with gentler means the dunce to please
His head imbibes right reason by degrees
As when from eve to mornings wakeful hour
Light constant rain evinces secret power
And ere the day resume its wonted smiles
Presents a cheerful easy task for Giles
Down with a touch the mellowed soil is laid
And yon tall clod next claims his timely aid
Thither well pleased he hies assured to find Wild tracklies haunts, and objects to his mind

Shot up from broard rank blades that droop below
The nodding wheat-ear forms a graceful bow
With milky kernels starting full weight down
Ere yet the Sun hath tinged its head with brown
Whiles thousands in a flock for ever gay
Loud chirping Sparrows welcome on the day
And from the mazes of the leafy thorn
Drop on by one upon the bending corn
Giles with a pole assails their close retreats
And round the grass-grown leevy border beats
On either side completely overspread
Here branches bend there corn overtops his head
Green covert hail for through the verging year
No hours so sweet no Scene to him so dear
Here Wisdoms placid eye delight sees
His frequent intevals of lonely ease
And with one ray his infant Soul inspires
Just kindling there her never dying fires
Whence Solitude derives peculiar charms
And heaven directed thought his bosom warms

Just where the parting boughs light shadows play
Scarce in the shade nor in the scorching day
Stretchid on the ~~shor~~ turf he lies a peopled bed
Where swarming insects creep around his head
The small dust-coloured beetle climbs with pain
O'er the smooth plantain-leaf a spacious plain
Thence higher still by countless steps conveyd
He gains the summit of a shivering blade
And flirts his filmy wings and looks around
Exulting in his distance from the ground
The tender speckled moth here dancing seen
The vaulting grasshopper of glossy green
And all prolific Summers spowers sustain
Their little lives by various powers train
But what can unassisted vision do
What, but recoil where most it would pursue
His patient gaze but finish with a sigh
When musing waking speaks the sky-lark nigh
Just starting from the corn she cheerly sings
And trusts with conscious pride her downy wings
Till louder breaths, and in the face of day
Mounts up and calls on Giles to mark her way
Close to his eyes his hat he instant bends
And forms a friendly telescope that lends
Just aid enough to dull the glaring light
And place the wandering bird before his sight
Yet oft beneath a cloud she sweeps along
Lost for a while yet pours her veried song
He views the spot and as the cloud moves by Save when she wheels direct from shade to sky
The fluttering songstress a mere speck became Like fancys floating bubbles in a dream
He sees her yet but yielding to repose
Unwitting his faded eyelids close
Delicious Sleep! From Sleep who could forbear
With no more guilt than Giles and no more care

Peace o'er her slumbers waves her guardian wing
Nor conscience once disturbs him with a sting
He wakes refreshed from every trivial pain
And takes his pole and brushes round again
Its dark-green hue its sicklier tints all fail
And ripening harvest rustles in the gale
A glorious sight if glory dwell below
Whear heaven's munificence makes all the show
Ore every field and glolden prospect found
That glads the ploughman's Sunday mornings round
When on som eminence he takes his stand
To judge the smiling produce of the land
Here vanity slinks back her head to hinde
What is there here to flatter human pride
The towering fabric or the domes loud roar
And stedfast columns may astonish more
Whear the charmed gazer long delighted stays
Yet traced but to the Architect the praise
Whilst here the veriest clown that treads the sod
Without one scruple gives the praise to God
And twofold joys possess his raptured mind
From gratitude and admiration joyend
Here midst the boldest triumphs of her worth
Nature herself invites the reapers forth
Dares the keen sickle from its twelvemonthes rest
And gives that ardour which in every breast
From infancy to age alike appears
When the first sheaf its plumy top upreares
No raik takes here what Heaven to all bestows
Chrildren of want for you the bounty flows
And every cottage from the plenteous store
Receives a burden nightly at its door
Hark! Where the sweeping seyth now rips along Each sturdey mower emulous and strong
Whose writhing form meridian heat defies
Bends over his work and every sinew tries

Summer

Prostrates the waving treasure at his feet
But Spares the rising clover Short and sweet
Come, Health, come Jollity; light footed come Here hold your revels and make this your home
Each heart awaits and hails you as its own
Each moistened brow that scorns to wear a frown
The unpeopled dwelling mourns its tenants Strayed
Even the domestic laughing dairy maid,
Flies to the field, the general toil to Share
Meanwhile the Farmer quits his elbow chair
His cool brick-floor, his pitcher and his ease
And braves the sultry beams, and gladly sees
His gates thrown open, and his team abroad
The ready group attendant on his word
To turn the Swarth the quivering load to rear
Or ply the busy rake, the land to clear
Summers light garb itself now cumberous grown
Each his thin doublet in the Shade throws down
Where oft the mastiff skulks with half-shut eye
And rouses at the Stranger passing by Whilst unrestrained the social converse flows
And every breast Loves powerful impulse knows
And rival wits with more than rustic grace
Confess the presence of a pretty face

For, lo! encircled there, the lovely Maid
In youths own bloom and native Smiles arrayed
Her hat awry, divested of her gown
Her creaking Stays of leather Stout and brown
Invidious barrier! why art thou so high
When the Slight covering of her neck Slips by
There half revealing to the eager Sight
Her full, ripe bosom exquisitely white
In many a local tale or harmless mirth
And many a jest of momentary birth
She bears a part and as She Stops to Speak
Strokes back the ringlets from her glowing cheek

Summer

Now noon gone by and four declining hours
The weary limbes relax their boasted powes
Thirst rages strong the fainting spirits fail
And ask the sovereign cordial home brewed ale
Beneath some sheltering heap of yellow corn
Rests the hooped keg and friendly cooling horn
That mocks alike the gobblets little frame
Its costlier potions and its nobler name
To Mary first the brimming draught is given
By toil maid welcome as the dews of heaven
And never lips that pressed its homely edge
Had kinder blessings or a heartier pledge

Of wholesom viands here a banquet smiles
A common cheer for all even humble Giles
Who joys his triviail services to yield
Amidst the fragrance of the open field
Oft doomed in suffocating heat to bear
The cobwebed barns impure and dusty air
To ride in murky state the panting steed
Destined aloft the unloaded grain to tread
Where in his path as heaps on heaps are thrown
He rears and plunges the loose mountain down
Laborious task! with what delight when done
Both horse and rider greet the unclouded sun

Yet by the unclouded sun are hourly bred
The bold assailant that surround thine head
Poor patient Ball, and with insulting wing
Roar in thine ears, and dart the piercing sting
In thy behalf the crest-waved boughs avail
More than thy short clipt remnant of a tail
A moving mockery - a useless name
A living proof of cruelty and shame
Shame to the man whatever fame he bore
Who took from thee what man can never restore
Then swarming flies contending suck thy blood
Nor thine alone the suffering, thine the care
The fretful Eve bemoans an equal share

Summer

Tormented into sores her head She hides
Or angry brushes from her new shorn sides
Penned in the yard, even now at closing day
Unruly Cows with marked impatience Stay
And vainly Striving to escape their foes
The pail kick down; a piteous current flows

Set not enough that plagues like these molest;
Must still another foe annoy their rest;
He comes, the pest and terror of the yard
His full fledged progenyes imperious guard
The Gander, spiteful, insolent and bold
At the colts footlock takes his daring hold
There, serpent like escapes a dreadful blow
And straight attacks a poor defenceless cow
Each booby goose the unworthy strife
And hails his prowess with redoubled noise
Then back he Stalks of self-importance full Seizes the shaggy foretop of the bull
Till whirled aloft he falls, a timely check
Enough to dislocate his worthless neck.
For lo! of old he boasts his honoured wound
Behold that broken wing that trails the ground
Thus fools and bravoes kindred pranks pursue
As Savage quite, and oft as fatal too
Happy the man, that foils an envious elf
Using the darts of Spleen to serve himself
As when by turns the Strolling Swine engage
The utmost efforts of the bullyes rage
Whose nibbling warfare on the grunters Side
Is welcom pleasure to his bristly hide
Gentle he Stoops, or Stretched at ease along Enjoys the insults of the gabbling throng
That march exulting round his fallen head
As human victors trample on their dead

Summer

Still Twilight, welcome! Rest how sweet art thou
Now eve overhangs the western clouds thick brow
The fanstretched curtain of retiring light,
With fiery treasures fraught: that on the sight
Flash from its bulging sides where darkness lours
In fancy's eye, a chain of mouldering towers
Or craggy coasts just rising into view
Midst javelins dire, and darts of Streaming blue

Anon tired labourers bless their sheltering home
When Midnight, and the frightful Tempest come
The Famer wakes, and sees with silent dread
The angry Shafts of Heaven gleam round his bed
The busting clould reiterated roars,
Shakes his straw roof, and jars his bolted doors
The slow winged storm along the troubled skies
Spreads its dark course; the wind begins to rise
And full blasts elms, his dwelling's shade by day
With mimic thunder give its fury way
Sounds in his chimney tops a doleful peal
Midst pouring rain, or gusts of rattling hail
With tenfold danger, lo! the tempest bends,
And quick and strong the sulphorous flame descended
The frightend mastiff from his kennel flies
And cringes at the door with piteous cries

Where nowes the trifler: where the child of pride
These are the moments when the heart is tryed
Nor lives the man with conscience ever so clear
But feels a solemn reverential fear
Feels too a joy relieve his aching breast
When the Spent Storm hath howled itself to rest
Silk, welcome beats the long continued Shower
And Sleep protracted, comes with double power
Calm dreams of bliss bring on the morning Sun
For every barn is filled and Harvest done

Now, ere sweet Summer bids its long adieu
And winds blow keen where late the blossom grew
The bustling day and jovial night must come
The long accustomd feast of Harvest home
No blood stain,d victory, in Story bright
Can give the philosophic mind delight
No triumph please while rage and death destroy Reflection sickens at the monstrous joy,
And where the joy, if rightly understood
Like cheerful praise for doubtful anguish knows
The soul nar check nor universal good
But free and pure the greateful current flows

Behold the sound oak tables massy frame
Besitoide the kitchen floor! the careful dame
And generous host invite their friends around
While all that clear,d the crop, or till,d the ground
Are guests by right of custom:- old and young
And many a neighboring yeoman join the throng
With artizans that lent their dext,rous aid
When over each field the flaming sunbeams play,d Yet Plenty reigns, and from her boundless boundless
Though not one jelly trembles on the board,
Supplies the feast with all that sense can crave
With all that made our great forefathers brave
Ere the Soy,d palate countless flavours try,d
And cooks had Natures judgment set aside
With thanks to Heaven, and taales of rustic lore
The mansion echoes when the banquet's over
A widir circle spreads, and smiles abound
As quick the frothing horn performs its round
Care,s mortal foe; that Sprightly joys imparts
To cheer the frame and elevate their hearts
Here, fresh and brown the hazel's produce lies
In tempting heaps, and peals of laughter rise

And clackling music with the frequent song
Unheaded baar the midnight hour along

Here once a year Distinction lowrs its crest
The master servant and the merry guest
Are equal all and round the happy ring
The reapers eyes exulting glances fling
And warmd with gratitude he quits his place
With sunburnt hands and ale enlivend face
Refill the jug his honourd host to lend
To serve at once the master and the friend
Proud thus to meet his smiles to share his tale
His nuts his conversation and his ale

Such were the days of days long past I sing
When Pride gave place to Mirth without a sting
Ere tyrant customs Strength sufficient bore
To violate the feelings of the Poor
To leave them distanced in the madening race
Wherever Refinement shews its hated face
Nor causeless hated ... tis the peasants curse
That hourly makes in wretched Station worse
Destroys lifes intercourse the social plan
That rank to rank cements as man to man
Wealth flows around him fashion lord reigns
Yet porverty is his and mental pains

Methinks I hear the mourner thus impart
The stifled murmurs of his wounded heart
Whence comes this change ungracious in some cold
Whence the new grandeur that mine eyes behold
The widening distance which I daily see
Has Wealth done this? then wealths a foe to me
Foe to our rights that leaves a powerful few
The paths of emulation to pursue
For emulation Stoops to us no more
The hope of humble industry is over

Summer

The blameless hope the cheering sweet presage
Of future comforts for declining age
Can my Sons share from this paternal hand
The profits with the labours of the land
No: the indulgent Heaven its blessing deigns
Where's the small farm to suit my scanty means
Content the Poet sings with us resides
In lonely cots like mine the damsel hides
And will he then in raptured visions tell
That sweet Content with Want can ever dwell
A barley loaf diminishing in lusty rounds
That fast, tis true my table crowns
Stops Nature's craving; yet her sighs will flow
From knowing this... that once it was not so
Our annual feast, when Earth her plenty yields
When clowned with boughs the last load quits the fields
The aspect still of ancient joy puts on
The aspect only with with the substance gone
The self same Horn is still at our command
But serves none now but the plebian hand
For home brew'd Ale neglected and debas'd
Is quite discarded from the realms of State
Where unaffected Freedom chas'd the dull
The separate table and the coffle bowl
Cool as the blast that checks the budding Spring
A mockery of gladness round them fling
For oft the Farmer ere his heart approves
Yields up the custom which he dearly loves

Refinement forces on him like a tide
Bold innovations down its current ride
That bear no peace beneath their shewy dress
Nor add one tittle to his happiness
His guests selected; ranks punctilios known;
What trouble writes upon a casual frown
Restraints foul manacles his pleasures maim

Summer

Selected guests selected phrases claim
Nor reignes that joy when hand in hand the join
That good old Master felt in shaking mine
Heaven bless his memory! bless his honourd name
The poor will speak his lasting worthy fame!
To souls fair purposd strength and guidance gave
In pity to us still let goodness live
Let labare have its due! my cot shall be
From chilling want and guilty murmers free
Let labour have its due! then peace is mine
And never, never shall my heart repine!

Autumn

Again, the years decline midst storms and floods
The thundring chase the yellow fading woods
Invites my Song: that fain would boldly tell
Of upland coverts and the echoing dell
By turns resounding loud, at eve and morn
The swineherds hallos, or the Huntsmans horn

No more the fields with scatterd grain supply
The restless wandring tenants of the sty
From oak to oak they run with eager hast
And wrangling share the first delicious taste
Of fallen Acorns, yet but thinly found
Till the strong gale have shook them to the ground
It comes! and roaring woods obedient wave
Their home well pleasd the joint adventurers leave
The trudging Sow leads forth her numerous young, Playful and white and clean the briars among Till briars and thorns increading fence them round
Where last years mouldring leaves bestrew the ground
And over their heads loud lashd by furious Squalls
Bright from the cups the rattling treasure falls

Autumn

Hot thirsty Food; whence doubly sweet and cool
The welcome margin of some rush-grown pool
The wild duck's lonely haunt, whose jealous eye
Guards every point; who sits prepared to fly
On the calm bosom of her little lake
Too closely screen'd for ruffian winds to shake
And as the bold intruders press around
At once She starts and rising with a bound
With bristles rais'd the sudden noise they hear
And ludicrously wild and, winged with fear
The herd decamp with more than swinish speed
And snorting dash thro' sedge, and rush, and reed
Through tangling thickets headlong on they go
Then stop and listen for their fancied foe
The hindmost still the growing panic spreads
Repeated fright the first alarm succeeds
Till Folly's wages wounds and thorns they reap
Yet glorying in their fortunate escape
Their groundless terrors by dregrees soon cease
And Night's dark reign restores their wonted peace
For now the gale subsides and from each bough
The roosting pheasant's shart but frequent crow
Invites to rest, and huddling side by side
The herd in closest ambush seek to hide
Seek some warm Slope with shagged moss overspread
Dry'd leaves their copious covering and their bed
In vain may Giles through gathering glooms that call
And solemn silence, urge his piercing call
Whole days and nights they tarry midst their store
Nor quit the woods till oaks can yield no more
Beyond bleak Winter's rage beyond the Spring
That rolling Earth's unwarying course will bring Who tills the ground, looks on with mental eye
And sees next Summer's sheaves and cloudless sky
And even now whilst Nature beauty's dies
Deposits Seed, and bids new harvests rise;

Autumn

Seed well prepar,d grubs, and coul, and lapse of time
'Gainst earth-bred grubs and cold and lapse of time
For searching frosts and various ills invade
Whilst wintery months depress the springing blade
The plough moves heavily, and strong the sail
And clogging harrows with augmented toil
Dive deep, and clinging mexes with the mould
A fattening treasure from the nightly fold
And all the cow-yard,s highly valued store
That late bestrew,d the blacken,d surface over

No idling hours are here when Fancy trims
Her dancing taper over outstretch,d limbs;
And in her thousand thousand colours drest
Plays round the grassy couch of noontide rest
Here Giles for hours of indolence atones
With strong exertion, and with weary bones
And knows no leisure, till the distant chime
Of Sabbath bells he hears at sermon time
That down the brook sound sweetly in the gale
Or strike the rising hill or skim the dale

Nor his alone the sweets of ease to taste
Kind rest extends to all — save one poor beast
That true to time and pace is doom,d to plod
To bring the Pastor to the House of God
Mean Structure; Where no bones of heroes lie
The rude inelegance of poverty
Reigns here alone: else why that roof of straw
Those narrow windows with that frequent flaw
O,er whose low cells the dock and mallow spread
And rampant nettles lift the spiery head
Whilst from the hollows of the tower on high
The grey capp,d Daws in saucy legions fly

Round these lone walls assembling neighbours meet
And tread departed friends beneath there feet
And new-briar,d graves that prompt the secret sigh
Shew each the spot where he himself must lie
Midst timely greetings village news goes round
Of crops late shorn, or crops that deck the ground
Experienc,d ploughmen in circle join
While Sturdy boys in feats of strength to shine
With pride eat their young associates brave
To jump from hollow sounding grave to grave

Autumn

Then close consulting, each his talents lends
To plan fresh Sports when tedious Service ends
Hither at times with cheefulness of Soul
Sweet Village Maids from neighbouring hamlets Stroll
That like the light-heel'd Does over lawns that rove
Look Shyly curious, ripening into love
For love's their errand: hence the tints that glow
On either cheek an heightend lustre know
When conscious of their charms even Age looks sly
And rapture beams from Youth's observant eye

The pride of such a party Nature's pride
Was lovely Polk Who innocently try'd
With hat of airy Shape and ribbons gay
Love to inspire and Slade in Hymen's way
But mind's serenity was lost and gone
Her eye grew languid and She wept alone
But ere her twentieth Summer could expand
Or youth was render'd happy with her hand yet causless seem'd her grief for quick restrain'd Mirth followed loud, or indignation reigns
Whims wild and simple led her from her home
The heath the common or the fields to roam
Terror and joy alternate rul'd her hours
Nor blithe She sung and gather'd useless flow'rs
Now pluck'd a tender twig from every bough
To whip the hovering demons from her brow
Ill-fated Maid! thy guiding Spark is fled
And lasting wretchedness awaits thy bed
Thy bed of trays! for mark where even now
O'er their lost child afflicted parents bow
Their woe She knows not, but perversely coy
Inverted customs yield her sullen Joy
Her midnight meals in secresy She takes Low muttering to the moon that rising breaks
Through nights dark gloom -- oh how much more forlorn
Her night that knows of no returning dawn
Now from the threshold once her infant Seat
O'er the cold earth She crawls to her retreat quitting the cot's warm walls unhoused to lie
Or share the swine's impure and narrow Sty

Autumn

The damp night air her shivering limbs assails
In dreams she moans and fancied wrongs bewails
When morning wakes none earlier rous'd than She When hedent drops fall glittering from the tree
But nought her rayless melancholy chees
Or soothe her rayles or stops her treaming tears
Her matted locks unornamented flow
Clasping her knees and waving to and fro
Her head bow'd down her faded cheek to hide
A pitcous mourner by the pathway side
Some lufted molehill through the livelong day
She calls her throne, there weeps her life away
And oft the gaily passing Stranger Stays
His well-tim'd Step and takes a silent gase
Till Sympathetic drops unbidden start
And pangs quick springing muster round his heart
And soft he treads with other gasers round
And fain would catch her sorrows plaintive sound
One word alone is all that Strikes the ear
Ans short pathetec simple word--, Oh dear
A thousands times repeated to the wind
That wafts the sigh, but leaves the pang behind
For ever of the prosperd parly shy
She hears the unwelcome foot advancing nigh
Nor quite unconscious of her wretched plight
Gives one sad look, and hurries out of sight

Fair promis'd Sunbeams of terrestrial bliss
Health's gallant hopes--and are ye sunk to this
For in lifes roard though thorns abundant grow
There Still are joys poor Poll can never know
Joys which the gay companions of her prime Sip as they drift along the stream of time
At eve to hear beside their tranquil hoave
The lifted latch that Speaks the lover come
That love matur'd next playful on the knee
To press the velvet lip of infancy
To Stay the tottering Step the future trace Inestamable Sweets of Social peace!

O Thou who bidst the vernal juices rise
Thou on whose blasts autumnal foliage flies
Let peace and Santy are mine to hold

Autumn

Shorn of their flowers that shed the untreasured seed
The withering pasture and the fading mead
Less tempting grown diminish more and more
The dairy's pride; sweet Summers flowing Store
New cares succeed, and gentle duties press
Where the fireside a school of tenderness
Revives the languid chirp and warms the blood
Of cold nipt weaklings of the latter brood
That from the shell just bursting into day
Through yard or pond pursue their vent'rous way
Far weightier cares and wider scenes expand
What devastation marks the new sown land
From hungry woodland foes go Giles, and gard
The rising wheat; ensure its great reward
A future sustenance a Summers pride Demand thy vigilance then be it try'd
Exert thy voice, and wield thy shotless gun
To harry there from morn till setting Sun

Keen blows the blast or ceaseless rain descends
The half stript hedge a sorry Shelter lends
O for a Hovel e'er so small or low
Whose roof repelling winds and early snow
Might bring home's comforts fresh before his eyes
No sooner thought, than see the Structure rise
In some sequester'd nook, embank'd around
Sods for its walls, and straw in birdens bound
Dry'ed fuel hoarded it his richest Store
And circling smoke obscures his little door
Whence creeping forth to duty's call he yields
And Strolls the Crusoe of the lonely fields
On Whitethorn towering and the feafless rose
A frost nipt feast in bright vermillion glows
Where clust'ering lustring sloes in glossy ride
He crops the loaded branch a comberous prize
And over the flame the spluttering fruste he rests
Placing green sods to seat his coming guests
His guests by promise playmates young and gay
But ah! fresh pastimes lure their steps away!
He sweeps his hearth, and homeward looks in vain
Till feeling Disappointments cruel pain

Autumn

His banquet marred grown dull his hermitage
The field becomes his prison till on high
Benighted birds to shades and coverts fly
Midst air health daylight can he prisoner be
If fields are prisons where is Liberty
Here still Still she dwells and here her votaries Stroll
But disappointed hope untunes the soul.
Restraints unfelt whilst hours of rapture flow
When troubles press to chains and barriers grow
Look then from trivial up to greater woes
From the poor bird boy with his roasted Sloes
To where not cheering sunbeam meets his eye
To where the dungeoned mariner heaves the Sigh Though ineffectual pity thine may be No wealth no power, to set the captive free
Though only no thy ravish'd sight is given
The golden path that Howard took to heaven
Thy Sights can make the wretched more forlorn
And deeper drive affliction barbed thorn,
Say not I'll come and cheer thy gloomy cell
With news of dearest friends. how good how well
I'll be a joyful herald to thine heart:
Then fail and play the worthless trifler's part
To Sip flat pleasures from thy glass brim
And waste the precious hour that's due to him
In mercy spare the base unmanly blow
Where can he turn to whom complain of you
Back to past joys in vain his thoughts may Stray
Trace and retrace the beaten worn out way
The rankling injury will pierce his breast
And curses on thee break his midnight rest
Bereft of song and ever cheering green
The soft endearments of the Summer Scene
New harmony pervades the solemn wood
Dear to the Soul, and healthful to the blood
For bold exertion follows on the Sound
Of distant Sportsmen and the chiding hound
First heard from kennel bursting mad with Joy

Where smiling Euston boasts her good Fitzroy
Lord of pure alms, and gifts that wide extend
The farmers patron, and the poor mans friend
Whose mansion glitt'ring with the eastern ray
Whose elevated temple points the way
O'er slopes and lawns the parks extensive pride
To where the victims of the chase resides
Ingulf'd in earth, in conscious safety warm
Till lo! a plot portends their coming harm

In earliest hours of dark unhooded morn
Ere yet one rosy cloud bespeaks the dawn
Whilst far abroard the Fox pursues his prey
He's doom'd to risk the perils of the day
From his strong hold block'd out perhaps to bleed
Or owe his life to fortune or to Hide
For now the pack impatient rushing on Range through the darkest coverts one by one
Trace every spot; whilst down each noble glade
That guides the eye beneath a changeful Shade
The loitring Sportsman feels the instinctive flame
And checks his steed to mark the Springing game
Midst intersecting cuts and winding ways
The huntsman cheers his dogs and anxious Strays
Where every narrow riding even Shorn
Gives back the echo of his mellow horn
Till fresh and lightsome, every power untried
The starting fugitive leaps by his side
His lifted finger to his ear he plies
And the View Holloo bid a chorus rise
O'er ditch over fence unconquerably bold
The Shining courser lengthens every bound
And his strong foot locks suck the moisten ground
As from the confines of the wood they pour
And joyous villages partake the roar
O'er heath far Stretch'd or down or valley low
The Stiff limb'd peasant glorying in the Show

Autumn

Curses in vain where youth & Guilt soon tires
Spite of the transports that the chace inspires
For hear unmounted long can charm the eye
Or hear the music of the leading cry
Poor faithful Trouncher, thou canst lead no more
All thy fatigues and all thy triumphes over
Triumphs of worth whose honorary fame
Beneath enormous oaks Britannias boast
In thick impenetrable coverts lost
When the warm pack in faultering silence stood Shine was the note that roused the listening wood
Rekindling every joy with tenfold force
Through all the mazes of the tainted course
Still foremost thou the dashing stream to cross
And toss'd the showering dew drops from the grass
Then bright emerging from the mist below
To climb the woodland hills exulting brow

Pride of thy race! with worth far less than thine
Full many human heads dayly shine
Less faith, less constancy, less generous zeal
Then no disgrace mine humble verse shall feel
Where not one lying line to riches bows
Or poisoned sentiment from rancour flows
Nor flowers are strewn around Ambitions carr!
Each sportsman heard the tidings with a sigh
When Deaths cold touch had stopt his tuneful cry
And though high deeds, and fair exalted praise
In memory lived and flowed in rustic lays Short was the strain of monumental woe
"Foxes rejoice! here buried lies your foe"*
